Office Information Systems: Office Specialist

PAY

The median annual wage for office specialists (also referred to as secretaries and administrative assistants) was $36,500 in May 2015.

JOB OUTLOOK

Overall employment of office specialists/assistants is expected to grow 3 percent from 2014 to 2024, slower than the average for all occupations. Among specialties, medical secretary is the only occupation that is expected to have much-faster-than-average employment growth. This is driven by the rapid growth of the healthcare industry. Overall, the majority of job openings will result from the need to replace workers who leave these occupations.

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

The Office Information Systems Office Specialist Associate of Applied Science degree and College Certificate programs are designed to prepare students for a variety of certifications in the computer related industries. Students currently employed in this field can obtain the skills needed to advance in management positions within their field.

WHAT DO OFFICE SPECIALISTS DO?

Office specialists perform routine clerical and organizational tasks. They organize files, draft messages, schedule appointments, and support other staff. Additionally, they work with a variety of different computer based applications (Word, Excel, PowerPoint, Access, etc.).

WHERE DO THEY WORK?

Although office specialists work in nearly every industry, many are concentrated in schools, hospitals, government agencies, and legal and medical offices. Most work in comfortable office settings. Virtual assistants typically work from a home office.
