Open to the Public at No Cost!

As if juggling career demands and parenting isn't enough, some find themselves caring for aging parents which can be a juggling act. In this workshop participants will discuss the personal and professional impact of multiple generation caregiving; and identify strategies and resources to assist with dual role caregiving. Experts will provide resources including insurance options, social security benefits, power of attorney and much more!

Participants will learn how to:

- Manage finances and the resources that are available for providing basic care to others.
- Be a parent while caring for aging relatives.
- Make tough decisions (e.g., about living arrangements) and about balancing one's time and lifestyle.
