America's first superheroes lived in the Midwest. There was Nanabozho, the Ojibway man-god who inspired Longfellow's The Song of Hiawatha. Paul Bunyan, the larger-than-life North Woods lumberjack, and Rosie the Riveter who churned out the planes that won the world's most terrible war.

Edward McClelland reads stories from his latest book, Folktales and Legends of the Middle West with songs by Mareva Lindo.

Open to the public at no cost!
