

Thank you for the iPad. I am reenergized by your acknowledgement, kindness, and generosity. I hope you allow me to be an active participant in moving WCCCD forward. I enthusiastically await your direction. Again, thank you.

I can honestly say that this year's convocation was the best ever! The opening video and the keynote speaker were excellent. The information presented at the Scholar's Corner: Online Resources for Adjunct Faculty session kept me and other attendees interested and engaged. The information was excellent, and for me, the most priceless pieces of information were the Mango Languages, and the 'secret code' for the remote LRC access.

I wanted to take a moment to tell you how much I enjoyed the Faculty Convocation! I thought the workshops were thought-provoking and insightful. I especially enjoyed hearing from our Chancellor Dr. Curtis Ivery, along with keynote speaker Dr. John E. Roueche. I listened intently to everything that was said and the messages that I took away were quite inspiring. I was one of the recipients of the "iPad Air 2" devices. I know that the names were selected at random, but personally I felt special, and the way that I felt on this past Saturday is how I would like my students to feel on our first day of class and throughout the semester. I enjoy being an instructor at WCCCD and I am thankful I am here.

Thank you.

Good Afternoon, The wonderful event last Saturday was a great success! I really had a great time interacting with colleagues of great mind. I learned, and was encouraged through those great speakers. Though I did not receive an iPad, I believe I had a reward from attending the Online Resource for Adjunct Faculty session. Everything was great from the start to the finish. Bravo to you and your team!!
